Google Kubernetes Engine Design Workshop

About this workshop

Building a plan to deploy and manage container-based solutions can be overwhelming, even for the most seasoned IT professionals. While developing a container-based app is relatively simple, deploying and running that app in a secure, scalable and production-ready platform is challenging. Your operations team understands the value of containers, but they may be hesitant to adopt because they aren't sure how to run them in production.

In this workshop, Insight's cloud experts will help your team understand the benefits of leveraging Google Kubernetes Engine (GKE) to host your applications. We'll work to clearly define your business objectives, create a baseline and set goals to optimize your container strategy.

Preparing for transformation

To ensure you receive the greatest value from this workshop, you'll need:

- Participation from business leaders looking for change (CEO, CIO, CTO, CMO or other business technology leaders)
- Participation from leaders responsible for designing and architecting your enterprise IT systems and solutions
- Participation from leaders responsible for developing and architecting applications
- A culture of cloud agility
- A group of 5 to ten leaders

Workshop topics

Over the course of this workshop, we will begin to design your container-based strategy informed by Insight's Kubernetes expertise and your specific goals and requirements. Topics include:

- Building a container strategy guided by Google and industry best practices
- Logging, monitoring, continuous integration and deployment (CI/CD)
- Governance and security
- How GKE can integrate into your existing systems

Duration
1–2 days

What to expect
- Identify areas and workloads that can benefit from the GKE platform
- Pinpoint the right resources to maximize the full value of containers.
- Lay a strategic foundation for your business's technical needs.
- Build an actionable plan to implement GKE in your environment.
